Tucson, AZ – LS Coding & Education LLC, one of the leading education facilities for medical coding certification, now offers all of their noted courses via a distance learning program. This distance learning program is among the most comprehensive curriculums available online for medical coding certification. Students enjoy the same detail-oriented instruction and thorough explanations at home as they would receive in a classroom setting. This is an ideal solution for those who are interested in becoming a Certified Professional Coder, but may not have the time for traditional classroom courses.

Distance learning courses from LS Coding & Education allow students to study the necessary material and receive their medical coding certification from the comfort of their homes. Online courses are available anytime and anywhere so students can study at their leisure and at their own pace. There are 100 class session of approximately one to two hours in length. When one session is completed the student is directed to proceed to the next session or take a chapter test.

Unlike traditional online courses, the medical coding certification classes offered by LS Coding & Education actually provide distance learning students with an opportunity to virtually sit in on a classroom session and watch a video of the classroom course as it unfolds. Those students who prefer a classroom environment but may only have the opportunity to study remotely will enjoy this unique feature of LS Coding & Education medical coding certification classes.

All classroom material, including handouts are available on the website for students to print and review at their leisure. Test-taking is also simple and convenient. Tests are sent via e-mail as an interactive PDF. The students fill in the correct answer or choose the correct multiple choice answer. Upon completion, the tests are submitted digitally to the instructors for grading and are returned to the student within 3 to 5 business days. Following the completion of this distance learning program, students will be well prepared to receive their medical coding certification.
