

LS Coding Education Offering Help Card Financial Aid Program

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) Tucson, AZ – Medical coding provides an exciting career opportunity with potential for professional and income growth. For some, the coding classes necessary to enter this career field may seem out of reach because of financial reasons. The new Help Card financial aid program offered by LS Coding & Education will make entry into the medical coding field accessible to all, providing an affordable financing solution.

With the Help Card, you can obtain easy financing for high quality coding classes offered by LS Coding & Education. To become a professional coder, you must earn AAPC coding certification. LS Coding & Education provides the training necessary for students to earn their AAPC certification. We work to accommodate the schedules of busy adult students, providing both live classroom and online options that allow our students to work at their own pace. We provide lectures, handouts and other learning materials that help our students master the necessary skills. We also have skilled instructors and coders that can help with student questions.

Typically, it takes our students about six months to complete the course work and get prepared for certification. That's a small amount of time to invest for a career with almost limitless job opportunities all over the US. Once you've completed your coding certification, you can also come back to us for any continuing education courses you need to maintain certification.

Medical coding is a career field with lots of growth potential. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, employment opportunities within the field will grow by 20 percent by 2018. An aging population and increased digitalization of medical records are making professional coders more important than ever to the health care industry.

LS Coding & Education's Help Card can help you make the investment in yourself you need to succeed as a medical coder. To learn more, visit <http://cpc.certifiedcodertraining.com/> or call 866-737-3701.

About LS Coding & Education LS Coding & Education provides traditional and distance learning options for individuals seeking AAPC certification. Our distance learning option provides an interactive, engaging experience for our non-traditional learners, providing a quality learning experience. Our courses can help people new to the coding field and folks returning for continuing education.