Playground to enhance family well-being

SAINT PAUL, MN, Sept. 21, 2013 /PRNewswire/ - A dream is now a reality for children in Saint Paul as their drawings were turned into a new playground today. In less than eight hours, the play space was built at the Heights Community School with the help of more than 200 volunteers from Foresters

, the Heights Community School PTA, Saint Paul

Public Schools and non-profit KaBOOM!. The new playground will eventually serve 23,000 children and their families in the community for years to come.

"Foresters believes in providing opportunities for families to spend quality time together," said Bruce Burak

, Foresters National Sales Manager "A playground is an important piece for the revitalization of a community. Not only does it provide a first step towards keeping children healthy, but it's a safe, central location for the entire neighborhood to get together."

Planning for the playground began at a Design Day event held in May when local children and community leaders met with organizers from KaBOOM! and Foresters to design their dream playground. The children's drawings were then used to create the final playground design.

Since 2006, Foresters has invested over $7 million with KaBOOM! with almost 100 playgrounds built or planned across the U.S. and Canada

. Over their 15 year lifespan, these playgrounds will provide more than 2.6 million children and their families with an opportunity to spend quality time together. Foresters is a KaBOOM! National Partner and a founding member of the KaBOOM! Leadership Circle - a group of organizations providing long-term guidance and support to KaBOOM! and its mission.
