

ATLANTA, GA, January 13, 2014 /24-7PressRelease/ -- The meeting facilitators , FindaFacilitator, would like to take a moment to talk about the advantages of conducting your company meetings virtually.

While not every business has staff who work remotely (though many do), regular contact with clients is a must for all. Since most businesses do not limit their customer base to their local vicinity, the need for quick, efficient and not to mention cost-effective discussions is imperative. Since it is not feasible to travel hundreds of miles every time a face-to-face conversation is needed, whether to talk about a proposal or discuss a particular project, the only solid alternative is video conferencing.

Has Your Company Gone Virtual?

The facilitators say that if your business is not using virtual meeting technology, then it is clearly missing out. Perhaps the best benefit of all is that every benefit is shared by all parties involved. The elimination of travel expenditures, such as the cost of airfare and hotel fees, can save a lot of money. Cutting out just one flight can pay for many years' worth of virtual meeting software subscription fees - just to put the cost savings into perspective! In addition, no travel means no travel time. You can get more done and keep your business moving forward the way it should.

According to Kris Casariego, Director of Marketing of Leadership Strategies, "Online conferences allow for an unlimited number of participants from anywhere in the world. It is the collapse of physical boundaries that have traditionally restricted corporate discourse, as well as the added benefit of features like the ability to save and record discussions for future need, that makes virtual meetings a win-win scenario."
