

CSR is Not About Giving Money Says New Research

Written by Business News

A new study has revealed that companies do not need to make financial donations to receive the benefits of being a socially responsible business.