

Written by Business News

---

The program, set to launch in September 2015, will focus initially on training candidates in the field of human resources workforce development, social services, youth education, as well as civil community advocacy.