Mountain View, AR - In its company mission to help clients find the tools that will maximize productivity while staying within their budget in this expanding digital media market, Edgemont Video continues to add the latest audio/video tools to its wide selection of products. The latest addition, Digital Rapids TouchStream, is among the most intuitive and reliable appliances. Ideal for professional media streaming in the field, on a desktop, or in a rack, Digital Rapids TouchStream is ideal for professional video streaming almost anywhere.

Digital Rapids TouchStream from Edgemont Video combines live streaming quality and reliability with an intuitive touch-screen interface, in a fully self-contained, easy-to-use, portable device for professional audio and video streaming. This device is designed to overcome the challenges often encountered when working in the field, such as space limitations, to minimal setup time, and also offers exceptionally quiet operation.

While it is simple enough to be used by new operators, Edgemont Video offers comprehensive training and support on the Digital Rapids TouchStream systems. With the proper training from Edgemont Video, users of the Digital Rapids TouchStream can efficiently utilize the system's multi-format, application-tailored models that let them choose the right configuration for any broadcast needs.

Digital Rapids TouchStream appliances from Edgemont Video deliver quality, reliability, flexibility and ease of use, ideal for live streaming of events such as concerts and sporting matches, remote news coverage, courtroom proceedings, education, and more. Edgemont Video offers Digital Rapids TouchStream for as little as $3,795.25. However, along with the product, clients can also expect continuous customer service and a relationship with a company dedicated to helping media professionals reach their goals.
