

Eduniversal ranks NUS Business School best in Far East Asia

Singapore-- Media OutReach --19 November 2013 - The National University of Singapore Business School has again been named the top business school in Far East Asia by Eduniversal in its 2013 Business Schools Ranking.

Based on an assessment of business schools in nine geographical regions, the ranking takes into account the international influence, reputation and quality of each school's programmes. The league table also uniquely incorporates peer assessment, with deans from some 1,000 business schools asked to vote for the academic institutions they would recommend to students who plan to study abroad.

As an indication of the strong international reputation enjoyed by NUS Business School, it retained Eduniversal's maximum rating of five Palmes for the sixth year running since its inception in 2008. Palmes are awarded to schools based on criteria such as accreditation, partnership networks, membership of international academic associations and other international rankings.
