

Psychology paper is the 100th article to be published by Cogent OA

Written by Australia Today

Cogent OA has published its 100th article in its newly launched journal Cogent Psychology. The article explores whether mistaken identity arises due to observers being poor at judging their ability to recognize unfamiliar faces, and also whether they might conflate the recognition of familiar and unfamiliar faces.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=147940&CultureCode=en>