

How stroke survivors could benefit from computer games

Written by Australia Today

---

Stroke survivors can have “significant” improvement in arm movements after using the Nintendo Wii as physiotherapy according to researchers. The popular computer remote could be customised to offer bespoke physiotherapy for stroke survivors in their own home according to research led by Lancaster University

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=147967&CultureCode=en>