

Shifting Boundaries and Changing Surfaces

Written by Business News

---

New research published in the Proceedings of The Royal Society A by members of the Mathematical Soft Matter Unit at the Okinawa Institute of Science and Technology Graduate University examines the energies at work in a closed flexible loop spanned by a soap film. While the underlying experiments are simple enough to be replicated in a kitchen sink, the research generates potentially important questions and changes how we think about different disciplines from material science to vertebrate morphogenesis.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=148101&CultureCode=en>