

ENTRA: Better software cuts computer energy use

Written by Business News

An EU research project is developing tools to help software engineers create energy-efficient code, which could reduce electricity consumption at data centres by up to 50% and improve battery life in smart devices.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=148337&CultureCode=en>