

American cities are many times brighter than German counterparts

Written by Business News

German cities emit several times less light per capita than comparably sized American cities. Surprisingly also, light emission per capita was higher in cities in the former East of Germany than from those in the former West.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=148494&CultureCode=en>