

Innate behaviour determines how we steer our car

Written by Business News

---

Researchers at Chalmers University of Technology have solved a 70 year old mystery in traffic research: an until now inexplicable jerkiness when we steer a vehicle. The discovery may lead to safety systems in cars that can correct dangerous steering movements before they occur.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=148496&CultureCode=en>