

Ductile materials for Arctic conditions

Written by Business News

The production of oil and gas at temperatures between 40 and 60 degrees below zero means that researchers must advance the development of materials that can withstand these harsh conditions.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=148561&CultureCode=en>