

Tired of London? Maybe it's time to change postal districts

Written by Business News

---

“When a man is tired of London, he is tired of life,” observed the writer Samuel Johnson in the eighteenth century. In fact, research published today suggests such a man may be merely living in the wrong postcode. A study of 56,000 Londoners found that a person’s life satisfaction depends, at least in part, on whether their personality suits the place where they live.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=148726&CultureCode=en>