

Scientists develop active substance for fatal muscle wasting in male children

Written by Business News

Duchenne muscular dystrophy is a congenital disease which causes muscle degeneration and eventual death in teenagers. Recently, researchers from Bern developed an active substance, which they together with an international team tested successfully.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=149371&CultureCode=en>