

New molecule protects heart from toxic breast cancer drugs

Written by Business News

A new molecule has been found that protects the heart from toxic breast cancer drugs and also kills the cancerous tumour. The research from Italy addresses the burgeoning problem of heart disease in cancer survivors and is announced by the European Society of Cardiology (ESC) today on World Cancer Day.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=149411&CultureCode=en>