

Bacterial DNA from the Black Death found in teeth

Written by Business News

Remnants of the genetic makeup of plague bacteria have been found in thousands of victims of the Black Death and the major plague epidemics at the end of the Iron Age. The DNA analyses may predict the next plague outbreak.

Read more <http://www.alphagalileo.org/ViewItem.aspx?ItemId=149547&CultureCode=en>