

TAMPA, Fla.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--In seeking out new carriers for its online transportation portal now in development, On the Move Systems Corp. (OTCBB: OMVS) joined one of the nation's largest and most prestigious aviation associations this week.

Founded in 1947, the Washington, D.C.-based National Business Aviation Association \(NBAA\) is the leading organization for companies that rely on general aviation aircraft to help make their businesses more efficient, productive and successful. The Association represents more than 9,000 companies and is responsible for the annual NBAA Business Aviation Convention & Exhibition, the world's largest civil aviation trade show.

OMVS is already in talks with air charter companies about offering their services on the new online booking portal that it is currently developing. Joining a high-profile network such as the NBAA is certain to aid OMVS in targeting new partnerships in the aviation industry that can help the company compete in the $300 billion online transportation industry by offering niche services to business travelers and others.

It's the first of many industry associations that OMVS expects to announce in the near future. OMVS has contacted representatives of private charter air carriers, intermodal transport companies, luxury car services and other in-demand services not offered by Priceline and other large websites.

In partnership with software architects BryterDyne, OMVS is working towards the release of the groundbreaking ISTx platform, the digital heart of an online destination designed to connect users with niche transportation options that will allow it to compete in the online travel market alongside Ctrip.com International, Ltd. (NASDAQ: CTRP), TripAdvisor Inc. (NASDAQ: TRIP) and Expedia.com (NASDAQ: EXPE).
