

Telio Agrees to Provide VoIP Services to M7 Customers in the Netherlands

Written by Australian Business

OSLO, Norway--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Telio Netherlands BV, a wholly owned subsidiary of Telio Holding ASA, has agreed with the Luxembourg Telecom and Television provider M7 Group SA to provide telephony services to its customers in The Netherlands. M7 operates in The Netherlands with a.o. the brand Canal Digitaal. During 2014, Telio Netherlands will start providing all VoIP services for their Dutch customers. This includes the migration of the voice services of all existing customers (currently approximately 145,000 customers). An intention has been expressed by both M7 and Telio to also look into providing VoIP services to other M7 customers across Europe.

"We are very pleased to announce this agreement with one of the biggest upcoming providers in the European market. It is both a recognition of Telio's outstanding technology platform and an important step forward in expanding our distribution and market presence outside Norway," says CEO Eirik Lunde of Telio Holding ASA.

"We are convinced we have selected the best platform to serve our customers. The platform meets the latest requirements and offers our customers some unique benefits that we will be bringing to market in the future," says COO Hans Troelstra of M7 Group SA.
