

ATLANTA, Jan. 31, 2014 /PRNewswire-iReach/ -- Aerodynamics Inc. (ADI), a leader in full-service shuttle operations, is pleased to announce ARGUS International Inc., a global safety expert within the aviation marketplace, has awarded ADI the highest achieving Platinum rating. The Platinum rating is considered the utmost honor and awarded only to service providers engaging in the highest level of safety practices. Thorough evaluations and compliance measures are used to gage the merit of the Platinum rating designation. The operator must meet all Gold rating requirements and within the preceding 24 months has passed an onsite ARGUS audit to adhere to Platinum standards.

The ARGUS rating system provides charter buyers with an insider's understanding and helps buyers pinpoint those whose historical safety records have been validated by objective safety standards. In order to receive the coveted Platinum rating, operators must meet exhaustive operations and maintenance requirements. Less than 5% of all FAA certified Air Carriers achieve Platinum status. After performing the in-depth audit, ARGUS added ADI to the exclusive list of Platinum aviation service providers. This status adds ADI to a small handful of FAA Part 121 operators to achieve the Platinum level.

"Safety has always been paramount in our company," said CEO Scott Beale. "This is an honor to be awarded the highest level of safety standards among a small group of 121 operators like ourselves. As a keystone to our operation we will continue honoring our safety standards as we continue to grow."

Operationally based in Atlanta GA., ADI is one of the country's leading full-service airlines, corporate and government aviation service providers. Founded in 1959, ADI has multiple operating bases in the U.S. and is a certified FAA 121/135 Air Carrier (Cert# BUEA634C) offering 50 Seat Charter Flights on the Embraer ERJ 145. Long recognized for its core value of operational excellence, ADI has served the industry for 54 years without incident or accident, one of only two companies operating Regional Jets in the supplemental 121 on-demand regime able to make this claim. ADI is ISBAO Stage II certified and ARGUS Platinum rated. For more information please visit www.flyadi.com.
