

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 25, 2013 /PRNewswire-iReach/ -- Accidents happen. The distress and disorientation one feels when faced with the harrowing experience of a roadway collision or sudden injury is bad enough on its own, but all too often it makes people vulnerable to being taken advantage of by entities, such as insurance companies, who might rather they not know their rights until it's too late. One local attorney is attempting to create more awareness in the community so that people can be as prepared as possible in those jostling moments.

The Law Offices of Rudy Vasquez, based in San Antonio but also serving throughout south Texas, has been making a point to help people become aware of some of the major missteps that people make after an accident or injury. It's important for people to remember that insurance companies have very good lawyers and knowledge of the law is a part of their daily practice, so the possibilities for costly blunder on the part of the average citizen are many and varied. Mr. Vasquez puts forth the idea that the need for Texas citizens to bolster themselves with knowledge is as valuable as any armor.

Some of the efforts that people can make to avoid confusion when faced with a car accident or a personal injury are quite simple. Vasquez advises people to read up on specific things that they should or shouldn't say or do in the event of an incident. When a personal injury is involved, it's especially important to know when it's the right time to call a personal injury lawyer. According to The Law Offices of Rudy Vasquez, not seeking experienced legal advice can mean the difference between a person getting the financial help they need and being left to come up with the money themselves. Since most lawyers, including Vasquez, offer the initial consultation free of charge, it's at no risk to an injured party to seek some initial advice.
