

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24, 2013 /PRNewswire/ -- The tide is beginning to turn in the battle against obesity in America, but the fight is not over, and leading L.A.-based physician network Beverly Hills Physicians wants to do something about it. The Los Angeles Times reported encouraging news last week; according to the results of a new study recently published in Pediatrics, an increasing number of teenagers are exercising more, eating more fruits and vegetables, eating less candy and drinking fewer sugar-saturated beverages than they did a decade ago. Despite this fact, numbers of overweight and obese children in middle and high schools continued to rise until 2005. The team at BHP understands that obesity in children inevitably leads to obesity in adults. Although it may prove difficult in determining where to undergo weight loss surgery, Beverly Hills Physicians alleviates the concerns of bariatric candidates from around the country by providing them with exceptional service and skill for unbeatable prices.

For unmatched care and professionalism, people routinely choose Beverly Hills Physicians for sleeve gastrectomy in Los Angeles. Perhaps the most popular and effective method of substantial weight loss among adults in the United States today is the gastric sleeve surgery. Unlike the lap band, the gastric sleeve procedure is more enduring and powerful because it requires removing approximately 85% of the stomach, thereby allowing patients to safely lose significant amounts of weight over a short period of time.

Beverly Hills Physicians is a top tier treatment center, servicing plastic and cosmetic surgery patients in facilities all over Southern California. With a wide range of medical specialists and surgeons, sleeve gastrectomy is far from being the only service area they excel in. BHP is constantly enticing clients with special offers, and while a successful back-to-school promotion is just days from ending, customers can always check the website for new savings opportunities. In an industry that typically caters to an elite few, Beverly Hills Physicians continues to corner the market by offering world class treatments at accessible, affordable prices that are within the budget of most American families.

Let's Continue to Beat Obesity, says Beverly Hills Physicians
