The new customizable two-channel pump will give users the ability to create and upload a drug library via their personal computer. Once the pump is connected, the library is uploaded via a USB cable and a single library build can be uploaded onto multiple devices. Users will be able to build a drug library with up to 100 drugs, with limits and dose and drug concentrations. They will also have the ability to view and print pump settings and event logs. This upgrade will streamline programming processes.

"Our established base of air transport and EMS Twins users will really appreciate the flexibility and increased efficiency that the new software and firmware deliver, enhancing value for an already lightweight, rugged and high-uptime dual channel pump," said Eric Melanson, Director of Marketing at B.Braun.
