) November 13, 2013 - META-Health University, a private educational higher education institution with the mission to offer high quality courses, diplomas and degrees in Integrative Health and META-Health announces has been officially launched Nov. 1.

META-Health University is building an innovative education platform with world-renowned faculty, top-notch classes and a deeply connected network of over 1,000 META-Health Professionals worldwide.

"Integrative Medicine is the Future. No question about it. It makes sense taking the best of all practices and focusing on the whole person and prevention. Integrative Medicine will help to solve the current health care crisis and rising costs associated with it." says Johannes R. Fisslinger, founder of META-Health University.

META-Health University believes that the current education for Integrative Health Professionals is not yet where it needs to be. Courses about the Mind-Body Connection, Health and Wellness Coaching, Clinical and Applied Hypnosis, Biofeedback and Neurofeedback, Mindfulness, etc. are very important and are also taught at META-Health University.

But META-Health University sets itself apart – by a long distance – by offering health professionals the newest cutting-edge protocols and tools for a precise META-Health Analysis based on the Organ-Stress-Emotion-Belief-Social Connection.

Understanding how our body-mind is healing itself and how emotions and thoughts and our social environment interact with each other is essential for a precise holistic and integrative diagnosis and therapy. META-Health University is not just a great school but a movement to establish a new integrative healing paradigm worldwide.
