) Florham Park, NJ – Total Health Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation Center, a New Jersey pain management clinic, is keeping up with the cutting edge of pain management and physical therapy by offering clients the new Magnesphere device.

The Magnesphere is an electromagnetic resonance device that can help patients relax, and which aids in the mitigation of pain symptoms, as well as stiffness and sleeping problems. The device also helps patients enjoy optimal health and body function.

The Magnesphere works by targeting molecules in the human body that have been negatively affected by various ailments. The device creates a magnetic field that helps to put those distressed molecules back in their optimal state.

The device has been found to be helpful to patients dealing with a number of conditions, including arthritis, tendonitis, back pain, migraines and Parkinson's disease, among others. Typical sessions at the NJ pain management clinic with the device can last between half an hour to an hour.

The Magnesphere uses an external magnetic field to effect molecular targets in the patient's body. The Magnesphere uses a lower-strength magnetic field to enhance relaxation and to encourage self-healing by the human body.

The Magnesphere, a Class 1 Medical Device registered with the FDA, has been thoroughly tested and found safe to use. The device fits in well with the New Jersey pain management center's goal of using minimally invasive techniques to promote pain mitigation and mobility and health optimization.
