

Denver Pest Control Company Offers "Peace of Mind" Inspections

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) DENVER, CO December 19, 2013 - This Christmas Eve, you want to make sure that not a creature is stirring in your home-not even a mouse. Animal & Pest Control Specialist encourages homeowners to follow up on possible signs of animal infestation, and have their homes inspected to ensure that pests have not moved in to avoid the cold

The early signs of animal infestation may be subtle, and may include:

Unidentified brown or dark black pellets in cabinets or drawers
Stale smells in confined places
Unexpected, foul-smelling damp places
Damaged food packaging
Sounds of scratching or clawing in the walls
By the time you have an animal sighting, the infestation has likely grown considerably. Pest animals reproduce quickly, and waiting weeks or months can mean several litters or broods, depending on the pest.

According to Don Scadden, "Suspecting a potential pest problem in your home can lead to considerable anxiety, and by the time you have it confirmed, you may be facing a much bigger problem. A Peace of Mind inspection allows us to confirm whether you have pests moving in and control them before they become a major problem."

Common pest animals that move into Front Range homes in early winter include mice, rats, squirrels, and raccoons.

About Animal & Pest Control Specialist (APCS)

Animal & Pest Control Specialist (APCS), Inc. is a family-owned pest control business with 30+ years' experience in helping homeowners deal with the sometimes wilder side of living on the Front Range. APCS is fully licensed by the Colorado Division of Wildlife and the Colorado Department of Agriculture, so we have the required permits to legally handle most pest problems, and when the situation calls for a special permit, we will obtain it. We are a member of the Colorado Pest Control Association, the National Pest Management Association, and the National Wildlife Control Operators Association.

Animal & Pest Control Specialist, Inc. 3800 E 64th Avenue
Commerce City, CO 80022
303-586-3811