

Unite Curves Networking Event for Plus-Size Industry Professionals

Written by Australian Business

NEW YORK, NY, September 12, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Unite Curves will hold a networking event on Saturday, December 7th, 2013 from 3-7pm EST in New York City. The event, which will be held at Loft 227, will bring together some of the most prominent leaders in the plus-size industry. The plus-size community is small in stature compared to its standard size counterparts however; the division is easily noticeable and Unite Curves was formulated to combat the diversity.

During the event, attendees will have the opportunity to mix and mingle with fellow plus-size bloggers, models, fashion industry and magazine executives, photographers, independent designers and event coordinators. The networking event will feature a business card exchange, a runway walk-off, a shopping experience and the opportunity to list your company in Pitchfest .

"Unite Curves is a great opportunity to give plus-size industry leaders and its supporters the opportunity to learn more about each other, their businesses and unite a community that already faces a lot of stereotyping from society. With the hurdles currently being thrown at the plus-size industry and its citizens we (as industry leaders) need to supporting one other and our efforts rather than contributing to heartache and disappoint. That is the purpose of Unite Curves, unity from the top down," said Kim McCarter, Event Coordinator for Unite Curves.

To register for this event, please visit <http://unitecurves.eventbrite.com>. For more information on Unite Curves and its mission, contact Kim McCarter at (347)687-1296.