NEW YORK, September 12, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Marguerite Shore, Owner and Translator of Shore Translations, has been recognized by Worldwide Who's Who for showing dedication, leadership and excellence in language services and contemporary art.

After graduating from Vassar College with a Bachelor of Arts in art history, as well as traveling to Italy to work and paint, Ms. Shore came back to the U.S. and worked at numerous jobs in the art world. In 1980 she was recommended as a translator for an art magazine, and over three decades later she has garnered a mountain of expertise in translating art-related texts from French and Italian into English. The owner and translator of art texts for Shore Translations, Ms. Shore manages all aspects of translation, working closely with both authors and publishers. Some of her clients include the Museum of Modern Art, Guggenheim Museum, Artforum Magazine, Rizzoli Publications and Prestel Verlag. Her published book translations include Artists Self-Portraits, The Book of the Wind, and Dinosaurs, a five-book series for children.

In addition to her work as a translator, Ms. Shore recently began teaching for Calder Classics, a summer study abroad program for high school students with a passion for Latin literature and an interest in art history. She remains professionally affiliated with the industry by way of the Association of Art Editors and the American Literary Translators Association. In the next five years, Ms. Shore plans to continue expanding her client base and refining her Calder Classics program.
