

Karbone To Be Silver Sponsor For Annual EMA Conference

Written by Australian Business

NEW YORK, NY, September 16, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Karbone, a pioneering Renewable Energy and Environmental Markets firm, announces today that they have become the Silver Sponsor of the annual EMA (Environmental Markets Association) Conference to be held September 25-27 in Las Vegas.

"Karbone is thrilled to sponsor this year's EMA Conference because of the incredible work the EMA has done to support organizations involved in brokering, advising, and trading in the environmental markets," says Izzet Bensusan, Founder and CEO of Karbone. "In particular, Karbone admires all the work the EMA has done to facilitate substantive dialogue between the key market participants whose thoughts, opinions and actions shape the future of this space."

The EMA has created a means for industry leaders involved with the carbon market, renewable energy credits, and many other areas of environmental business and regulation to openly discuss their work, analyze current industry issues, and respond to questions from their peers at its various Regional Round Table events.
