

SocialPoint.Me Adds Foursquare to its Social Media Management App

Written by Australian Business

CINCINNATI, OH, September 17, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- SocialPoint, Inc announced today that they have added Foursquare to their social media management Android app, SocialPoint.Me.

Billed as Hootsuite for the everyday social media user, the app now offers one-step access to seven social media news streams from one convenient, easy to use free app.

"Our clients have been asking when we would be offering Foursquare and we having been working quickly to bring them this functionality," said Chris Burnett, SocialPoint's Vice President of Marketing. "You are now able to fully interact with Foursquare from SocialPoint.Me's Android app, including check- in and photo capture and upload."

With the addition of Foursquare, the SocialPoint.me Android app now includes newsfeeds from Facebook, Twitter, Google+, LinkedIn, Instagram and Tumblr. AT&T customers can also access their AT&T text messages and "On Behalf Of" messages through the social media management app.

SocialPoint.Me also introduced an iOS version of the app last month and expects to incorporate Foursquare into the iOS version early next month.

SocialPoint.Me is the Social Media Management Tool built for the everyday person to enhance their social experience. Connect your favorite social networking sites and then use our custom tools and features to explore your social world like never before!