

NORCROSS, GA, September 17, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Many people want the style and durability of stone countertops, but are not familiar with the many types of stone (both natural and manufactured) available or just what goes into turning slabs of stone into polished surfaces. That is why Premier Stone Services, web site provides information to help people become knowledgeable customers. Visitors to the site can learn more about natural stone like granite, marble, and limestone, as well as manufactured options such as Caesarstone and Silestone, which are used for [ulr=http://www.stone-services.com/why-us.html]countertops in Chattanooga[url] by discerning homeowners.

What's on the Premier Stone Services Site?

The site includes a blog and FAQ section so that people can get information and answers to their questions before visiting Premier Stone Services, granite warehouse in Chattanooga . The blog also has information about the company's community improvement projects.

The leaders in Chattanooga granite countertops provide a large gallery of photos on their site of their work in kitchens (indoor and outdoor), bathrooms, and other spaces. They also explain the fabrication process and include photos of the many types of stone they offer.

Dara Summers, Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Premier Stone Services, explains the importance of providing so much information on their site. "We know that countertops are a big investment for customers, but most people are not experts on the many different materials available. We want them to know as much as possible before they choose the stone and the fabricators who will do the work, whether they go with us or not. However, we feel confident that we have the best selection and experts in the business."
