MIAMI, FL, September 17, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- New recipe sharing website, Gourmandize.com, is launching its second recipe competition during the month of September. Members are asked to submit their best recipes with apples. Each entry must be original and submitted to Gourmandize's website by October 10, 2013. The contest's prizes include a new Kindle Fire HD for the first place winner and a set of gold pig bookends for the runner-up. To compete, visit Gourmandize.com, submit a recipe with apples and share it on social media. The more shares the greater chance a recipe will win.

This is the second recipe contest for Gourmandize. During the month of May the recipe website, along with its affiliates, launched an international contest featuring French cartoon characters, Asterix and Obelix, who were in search of a strength enhancing "magic potion." The first prize winner received a new juicer.

Gourmandize has been very active this summer. Since the launch of the website, Gourmandize has actively searched for food bloggers, chefs, food magazines and hosts of food shows from all over the country to feature them on the site. By highlighting those who devote their time to food and cooking, Gourmandize continues to grow allowing people to share their food and love of food with a larger platform.

750 Grams International

Gourmandize.com was launched by parent company 750 Grams International. Created in 2004, 750g.com has become one of the most popular cooking websites in France with over 15 million monthly visitors by being actively involved in with the French blogging community. The site features two chefs, their mascots Damien and Christophe, who head a cooking school in the northern town of Soissons and also host an annual salon for French bloggers featuring new products, cooking and photography tutorials.

In addition to Gourmandize, 750g.com has launched other sites internationally in Italy, Germany, Brazil and Spain under localized names, as well as in the UK and Ireland under the name Gourmandize UK and Ireland.
