MINNEAPOLIS, MN, September 18, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Midwest Mortgage Capital announces the addition of its new branch office in Maple Grove, Minneapolis that will serve customers in the broader Minneapolis area. The new office supports the company's effort to expand nationally. The Maple Grove-Minneapolis branch is one of three new offices opening this year along with locations in Indianapolis and Kansas City. Jeremy Redlinger, who brings nearly 12 years of mortgage industry experience, has been named the branch manager.

"Midwest Mortgage Capital is well-positioned to grow as we continue to enter new markets and add new capabilities," said Jerry Frost, President. "The investment we've made in our systems and technology has been attracting the attention of highly skilled mortgage professionals like Jeremy Redlinger who are looking to join a growing operation."

Over the last decade, the company has grown to one of the largest regional independent mortgage bankers and is now doing business in 16 states. Part of the growth of the company can be attributed to its efforts to attract small lenders and originator teams and fold them into the company. Midwest Mortgage Capital is focused on bringing better customer service, accountability and philanthropy to the mortgage industry. Since its inception in 2001, the company has funded over $5 billion in home loans.

Jeremy Redlinger is responsible for leading company operations in the Maple Grove, Minneapolis area and brings a wealth of mortgage industry experience to the Midwest Mortgage Capital team. He is known as a thought leader in the industry and a popular blogger in the Minneapolis area regarding local trends in residential lending. About Midwest Mortgage Capital: Midwest Mortgage Capital (MMC) was founded in 2001 in St. Louis by industry veterans who wanted to challenge how traditional mortgage companies do business by better educating and empowering their clientele. Wanting to retain as much control over each of its transactions as possible, MMC quickly gained the ability to originate and underwrite a wide array of loans in-house and delivered superior service and turn times to its originators.
