

NEW YORK, NY, September 18, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- OnMyWay has become the easiest way to source talented people across the social web. TalentSearch's patent pending algorithm indexes active social networks to gather information around a candidate's skills, interests and activities.

Many Companies are Having Difficulty Finding Qualified Candidates—Are you one of them?

In our current economic times, many companies are wondering, "How is it possible that we're having trouble finding qualified candidates when unemployment is still so high?"

The answer to this question is not that easy. There are many wide-ranging factors at play which impact the ability to find qualified applicants. The biggest problem across all industries is actually connecting and communicating with the candidate. With the advent of Social networks, it has become difficult to find direct contact information for the candidates that fit your needs. You can see them, but you can't touch them.

Each OnMyWay unified profile includes direct contact information, such as phone and email, allowing recruiters to communicate with qualified candidates directly, at the right time, across the right channels. Whether searching for IT professionals, Sales, Marketing or support personnel, TalentSearch delivers the people recruiters need, when they need them.

Recruiters and Hiring managers can now locate Passive Candidates looking for a Job Change based on their Social Activity. It's that simple.

OnMyWay is a Social recruiting platform designed to help recruiters and hiring managers more efficiently find and hire the best talent from across the social web. Our system was created to provide a unified view of each candidate by combining aggregated data from active social profiles, delivering the most comprehensive social talent available. Our easy-to-use collaborative and social tools help to streamline the recruiting process allowing recruiters to spend more time connecting with professionals to hire.

OnMyWay is transforming the way that companies are locating and communicating with candidates, our Talent Search Data solution is yielding impressive results.
