

NEW YORK, NY, September 21, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- When visiting a new city, it is always difficult to decide what to do when there, especially if visiting for a limited time period. Having a handicap can add even more difficulty to these decisions when each prospective activity must be double checked for accessibility. If you are looking to travel to the Phoenix area, here are some ideas that are fully accessible, family-friendly, and may peak your interest!

For a unique show experience, grab a production at the Celebrity Theatre. With no seat farther than 75 feet away from the stage, this round auditorium features a revolving stage that provides an exceptional view for every audience member. The Celebrity Theatre provides a wide variety of shows including sports, comedy, and music of all genres.

Visit Bentley Projects, the largest contemporary art gallery in the West, located in a renovated 1918 Downtown Phoenix warehouse. With towering ceilings and outstanding architectural details, the space lends itself as a perfect showroom for the gallery's paintings, sculptures, photography, and print exhibitions. Featuring local and internationally recognized artists, Bentley Projects is a wonderful way to view the best art Phoenix has to offer.

The Challenger Space Center, in association with the Smithsonian Institute, has three levels of unique exhibits and memorabilia. Featuring exceptional articles of space history, including a life-size Iridium satellite model and a real landing gear tire from Space Shuttle Discovery STS-121, the center is open daily and has available tours. It's a great place for all ages to learn and become inspired by the wonders of space and the universe.
