Written by Australian Business

ST. LOUIS, MO, September 22, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- ThrottleNet, an IT firm based in St. Louis, MO has been named one of the top local companies for customer value by St. Louis Small Business Monthly, a magazine providing business ideas, strategies and insights for CEOs, CFOs, presidents, owners and other top executives to help them grow their companies.

The firm is one of just a few area companies receiving this recognition. The winning companies are selected from nominations and comments from clients. The full list of businesses receiving this acknowledgement will appear in the publication's October, 2013 edition.

"ThrottleNet is dedicated to providing a great return on investment for each and every client, and we are proud our customers have recognized us for the value we bring them," said George Rosenthal, President. "Our entire staff strives to go the extra mile for our client businesses and we are excited to be recognized for not only meeting but exceeding their expectations as their IT partner."

ThrottleNet specializes in outsourced IT through Managed Network Services (MNS). The firm specializes in these services as well as other aspects of MNS including Virtual CIO, Managed Back-up, Cloud Computing, Mobile Apps, hardware and more.

Rosenthal said the firm will strive to continue its outstanding customer valued services whether it be with their Help Desk or insights on technology trends through its TNtv television portal on the ThrottleNet website.

ThrottleNet, Inc. was founded in 1999 by George Rosenthal, President, Michael Heil, CEO, and Marc Arbesman, CIO. The firm has offices in St. Louis and Salem (Boston) MA and has grown to serve over 300 clients.
