NEW HAVEN, CT, September 23, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Maxwell A. Amoh, former Manager, Programs in International Educational Resources (PIER) at the Yale University's MacMillan Center, has been recognized by Worldwide Who's Who for showing dedication, leadership and excellence in higher education.

For over 20 years, Mr. Amoh served Yale University in the roles of international educational resource program manager and outreach director of African studies at the MacMillan Center, and director of an event-based teacher collaborative program at the Yale Peabody Museum. He was responsible for managing the overall PIER programs, services, and resources, and overseeing and coordinating the work of the PIER directors in International Affairs, East Asian, European, Latin American, and Middle Eastern studies. He also designed programs on international studies and global issues, and taught them to other teachers and educators from across the U.S., which enabled these topics/content to be incorporated into new curricula.

During his tenure at Yale University as program director at the Peabody Museum and one of the leading architects of the high quality and innovative PIER outreach programs at the MacMillan Center over the last two decades, Mr. Amoh personally contributed to Yale's exceptional reputation in this area of expertise - in local, regional, national, and international forums.

Now retired from the education profession, Mr. Amoh is not slacking but already involved in a new venture, an e-commerce business called The Super Mart Online. Through this enterprise, he will be conducting online business through eBay and PayPal.

Mr. Amoh holds an M.A. from Wesleyan University and is currently pursuing a Ph.D. in ethnomusicology.
