

ATLANTA, GA, September 24, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- The oil vaporizer pen supplier, VaporizerUSA, discusses the recently released DaVinci vaporizer. Clearly alluding to the mastermind Italian inventor, the manufacturer of the DaVinci definitely had marketability in mind when releasing this product.

Despite its bulky size, the DaVinci contains plenty of features, making it a worthwhile purchase for casual vapor users. This vaporizer has an edge over the competition, says the discount vaporizers store, because of its versatility. Not only can it be used for vaporizing solid material, it also doubles as an essential oil vaporizer and triples as a diffuser of aromatic scents.

Few comparable devices feature this 3-in-1 setup, which may be enough for buyers to look past the DaVinci's size. Operating the device is easy, as it is equipped with two switches and a flip top vape chamber. Once the product is inserted, turn the master switch on, followed by the heating element switch. Users then have vapor delivered within just a minute.

According to Taylan Saydar, CEO of VaporizerUSA, "The DaVinci may not be the prettiest vaporizer pen around, but it gets the job done well. Considering the capability to utilize it as an oil scent diffuser as well, you can't beat the price."

The digital vaporizer supplier does want to remind buyers that one downside to the device is that it can get pretty hot, which is why they stress the importance of letting the internal chambers cool before cleaning them.
