

GREENVILLE, SC, September 24, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Dr. Paul Drago, a triple board certified physician currently practicing out of South Carolina, did not follow a traditional path. Having originally studied zoology at the University of Maryland, Drago would eventually go on to become an ENT specialist, renowned cosmetic surgeon and sought after speaker.

Recently, his more than 20 years of medical service was recognized by his former patients. In an anonymous poll taken amongst former cosmetic surgery patients, Dr. Drago was voted the best medical doctor in the South.

In addition to his alternative educational path, Dr. Drago distinguishes himself from his colleagues in several key ways. For one, he specializes in more than one area of expertise. Whereas the average doctor would buckle under the pressure of working the equivalent of two full-time jobs, Dr. Drago has met the challenge head on and thrived.

Despite his busy schedule, Dr. Drago was praised by his former patients for his patience, attention to detail and overall knowledge of the industry. A recent patient of Dr. Drago's stated that, "Having cosmetic surgery is a big deal, and is a decision that shouldn't be taken lightly. Thankfully, Dr. Drago didn't rush me into a decision, and was thoughtful enough to discuss every option available to me."

Dr. Drago is notorious for using the latest medical techniques to treat his patients. Whenever possible, he utilizes less intrusive, highly effective surgical procedures to help his patients achieve the results they desire. Those polled noted that they experienced significantly shorter recovery times and better results under Dr. Drago's care.

Voters also noted Dr. Drago's giving and philanthropic nature. Recently Drago volunteered with the Charlotte Rescue Mission. He has also held presentations on a variety of subjects, and has spoken before several illustrious societies such as the Lancaster Medical Society and the New York State Department of Social Services. Most residents of South Carolina have heard Dr. Paul Drago speak about various medical topics and the medical community at large on a local radio station.

So while Dr. Drago didn't take the most traditional path, he did prove that one can approach life from many different angles and still achieve greatness.

Dr. Paul Drago currently acts as a Medical Director and Otolaryngology Consultant at the South Carolina Department of Corrections.
