Written by Australian Business

LOUISVILLE, CO, September 25, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- JumpNrope, a jump rope education-based team of World Jump Rope Champions, will be opening the doors to the Nation's largest jump rope gym on Saturday, September 28th in Old Town Louisville. Founder and five-time World Champion Molly Metz and her crew of dynamic coaches will be offering the public a free day of camps and workouts on opening day, in celebration of their new 10,000 square foot facility.

The gym will be conducting programs for all skill levels and ages, offering jump rope & gymnastics programs for beginner jumpers to competitive jumpers, and physical activities for toddlers. For adults, there will be an entire section of the gym reserved for CrossFit classes and jump-rope-focused Endurance Training, all of which are being offered for free on Opening Day.

Metz says she couldn't have dreamed up a better location and combination of activities for this gym, which provide a huge playground for kids and adults to play and live life largely. "I started this business six years ago with the intention of getting any and every kid and adult to jump rope and showing them that being active can and should be a lifelong fun adventure. I've realized along the way that getting kids and adults to jump rope is just a catalyst to something even greater- that we are actually building a thriving community of confident, mindful, and healthy people. I cannot ask for a better return for my business."

The JumpNrope Gym is expecting a huge turnout for the Grand Opening on September 28th. Spots can be secured by registering for these free events on the JumpNrope website (www.JumpNrope.com).
