

OXFORDSHIRE, ENGLAND, September 26, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Thames Valley Catering is determined to keep up with the latest trends in all the products that they supply and the latest ranges from

Royal Genware

have enabled them to provide an excellent range of modern stoneware that will be a hit in any modern restaurant, hotel, bistro or specialist catering establishment. Thames Valley Catering is very proud to promote the Royal Genware Luna range of stoneware, which is produced with an excellent matt black finish. This contemporary range of tableware looks superb and is a great contrast to the modern white tableware that is so prevalent in the British Catering industry. The Royal Genware Luna tableware is also a very durable range of tableware and will match porcelain, but there is a slightly more vulnerability to light scratching than the equivalent white tableware.

Thames Valley Catering notes that this particular range of Royale Genware tableware has some of the most interesting designs of plates and bowls in the modern catering portfolio with a range of square plates and bowls and a range of round and tapered bowls, which allow the chef to present his culinary masterpieces in superb fashion. They say that eating is 50% carried out using the eyes and the R G Luna Range of tableware will make even the simplest of dishes look absolutely fabulous as a prelude to the eating experience.

Probably the major advantage of that Thames Valley Catering sees in the Royal Genware Luna range is the versatility of the tableware as it can be used in a range of different settings. The Luna range can be used in Asian, Asian Fusion and Mediterranean eating places where the colours and textures of the food provide a striking contrast to the lovely matt black finish. The vibrancy of a good specialist restaurant will be complimented by this exceptional range of tableware. However Thames valley Catering notes that the R G Luna range of tableware will also suit the modern gastro pub or the nouveau cuisine experiences so often found in the major restaurants of the major cities and top catering establishments.

Thames Valley Catering is pleased that the Royal Genware Luna range is able to be used in the oven or the microwave and is also freezer and dishwasher safe. This makes this particular range of tableware a very trustworthy as well as an extremely versatile type, which can take the rough and tumble of the kitchen as well as most of its contemporaries. The fascinating part of this range is that it will fit excellently with a range of small glass bowls and dishes as well as a range of black wooden bowls, which are part of the Thames Valley Catering stock list. This enables the chef to construct a range of culinary dishes, which can cater for the major course as well as the side dishes and accoutrements, which are so important to the good chef. A visit to the Thames Valley Catering website will give a great view of the potential of this range.

Thames Valley Catering Have A Black Mood With Royal Genware

Written by Australian Business

Thames Valley Catering Equipment is a family run business based in Oxfordshire. There customers use them time and time again due to their believes and values in great customer services and low prices on quality products.