

COLUMBUS, OH, September 26, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- A great set of clean, pearly white teeth are like a calling card - attractive and memorable. On the other hand, having a mouth full of brown, yellow or badly stained teeth can be a liability in a number of ways, especially when meeting new people.

It makes for awkward social situations and insecure encounters. Issues with off-color teeth are among the top complaints from dental patients, which is why Columbus teeth whitening dentist, Dr. Douglas Goff, specializes in cosmetic dentistry and offers comprehensive teeth whitening services.

Though it may not make much sense from a dental health perspective, many people are more concerned with the outward appearance of their teeth than the overall condition of the teeth and gums. They want to maintain good oral health, but many of them strongly demand cosmetic services like whitening so that they can feel confident about their smiles. The newest dental technologies available make tooth whitening very quick and simple for patients.

It seems that people have wanted their teeth whiter and straighter since the beginning of time. Unfortunately, in the past they did not have access to the products and services now available to dental patients.

Teeth whitening Columbus dentist Dr. Goff offers two main types of whitening services. The patient can either relax in the dentist's chair and have his teeth whitened professionally, or bring home a system that will allow him to perform the whitening process himself.

"I know my patients like to have options. They need a dentist who cannot only give the results that they need, but also provide a convenient and affordable solution. That's why I give them the choice between in office and take home whitening," he explains.

An in-office session is the most effective option because the dentist uses tools and products that are only available for use by dental professionals. Patients in Columbus who are suffering from the effects of discolored teeth don't have to deal with this issue one moment longer. A whitening session can be done in just under an hour-just contact Dr. Goff's office for a session at <http://www.drdouglasgoff.com>.
