

COLUMBUS, GA, September 29, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Unlike dentures, dental implants restore smiles by fixing the problem at the root. Dr. Tyler Myers understands that having treatment options is important to his patients. He believes in providing the best restorative treatment possible for each individual case.

"Although a little more invasive than other treatments, dental implants are the most permanent option to replacing missing teeth," said Dr. Tyler Myers, Columbus dentist. "Implants hold false teeth from the root, not at the surface. This makes artificial teeth feel like a real part of the patient's mouth."

Dental implants are synthetic structures that closely resemble the common screw. They are surgically inserted to the space normally occupied by the root. The implants are attached to a metal framework on the jaw bone or directly to the jaw. Dental implants are the most realistic and permanent tooth restoration procedure available. They truly grip like natural teeth.

Unfortunately, not all patients are candidates for dental implants. Given the active role of the jaw bone, a patient must have proper bone density. Additionally, the patient must have a strong immune system. Although artificial, having dental implants does not mean a patient can neglect oral hygiene. Dental implants require a dedicated oral hygiene regimen. Patients should brush, floss and gargle just as they would natural teeth.

Along with dental implants, Dr. Myers offers the Columbus area a full range of general dentistry services, including cleanings, root canal therapy, fillings, sealants, crowns, bridges, dentures, veneers and Invisalign. Dr. Myers will find an appropriate alternative for patients who do not meet the physical requirements for dental implants. "My goal is to give my patients healthier smiles that they are proud of. If they can't get dental implants, I'll find another way to restore their smiles quickly and with care."
