WESTFIELD, IN, September 29, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- At Krause Dental, Dr. Kenneth Krause, dentist in Westfield, strives to keep his patients up-to-date with important dental health care information. In order to maintain dental health education even when Krause Dental's office is closed, Dr. Krause offers online education resources. The launch of his new website yields a host of educational resources including: education videos, frequently asked questions, and an extensive patient education library.

Patients can visit the practice's newly developed website to view educational videos explaining dental procedures and terminology. These videos can also be seen during consultation and before procedures to ensure patients have a proper understanding of the treatment they are receiving. From teeth whitening to Invisalign treatment in Westfield, the educational videos are available to better inform patients about symptoms and smile-enhancing treatment options.

"I believe that informed patients are better prepared to make decisions regarding their health and well-being. This is why I have added new online education resources. I want all of my patients to be fully prepared for their appointments and to know exactly what to expect," said Dr. Kenneth Krause, a Westfield dentist.

In addition, patients can visit the website for Krause Dental to view frequently asked questions, which allow patients to view answers to questions they may have. Dr. Kenneth Krause, Westfield, IN dentist, understands that patients have questions that are often the same. For this reason, he has added the frequently asked questions section to ensure other patients can benefit from the answers as well. If that is not enough, patients can navigate the website to view an extensive education library, home to a host of dental health topics, including dental implants in Westfield.

Dr. Krause also provides his patients with one-on-one explanations and personalized attention throughout their diagnosis and treatment. He provides complete treatment plans and consultations to discuss possible solutions with each patient. Additionally, Dr. Krause offers all phases of general dentistry and cosmetic services with a complete range of procedures for a healthy, active lifestyle and a fresh, new smile.

The addition of valuable dental educational resources is further proof of Dr. Kenneth Krause's continual commitment to providing patients with the best dental care available. No matter what their question is, patients can find an array of valuable dental health care information, readily available via Krause Dental's website at <http://www.dentistwestfieldin.com> .
