

Miller Miller Announces Partnership With 720 Credit Score

Written by Australian Business

MILWAUKEE, WI, October 01, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- What is the #1 concern of people who need to file bankruptcy? That bad credit will continue to follow them even after they file. At Miller & Miller, we are aware that filing a bankruptcy is only a part of your concern: You also want to get back to a normal life after your bankruptcy. This includes rebuilding your credit score as quickly as possible.

For years, we have been meeting with clients who are worried about the future: if you are judged on your credit score, how can you make sure it actually reflects your financial recovery instead of your past? You need credit to rent an apartment, buy a car. You need good credit to save money when you buy these things. Employers may also run credit checks on potential employees. The bottom line is that your credit is very valuable. But filing a bankruptcy does not have to be the end of it. In fact, it can be the starting point to better credit than you have had before. Miller & Miller wants to help you to get your fresh start, but just as importantly, we care enough not to leave you on your own after that. We have some great news: there actually IS a clear path to follow to restore your credit after bankruptcy.

Two things we have found to be true in our research:1) If you take immediate steps to start rebuilding your credit score after a bankruptcy, you can transform it in 12 to 24 months after the bankruptcy has been discharged.

2) You must take these steps. Too many people decide to wipe their hands clean of credit after they file. But if you do this, instead of having poor credit, the person ends up with no credit. Unfortunately, no credit can be just as bad as poor credit.

Miller & Miller has searched high and low for the best credit education program out there to help our clients do this. It's not just credit repair, which may only deal with derogatory entries and could be a scam company preying on your credit insecurities, but true credit education on how to conduct your financial life so as to raise your score. After testing the program, we learned that people who have been through 720CreditScore.com's credit program (7 Steps to a 720 Credit Score) can transform their credit scores - usually within 24 months of declaring bankruptcy!

With these kinds of results, we decided to make this program available for a limited time to every single one of our current bankruptcy clients. Furthermore, our past clients who may still be struggling with credit related issues can purchase the program at a deeply discounted price. This credit education program normally costs $1,000.00 for enrollment!
