

Autologica Increases Integration of its Dealer Management System (DMS) with Toyota

Written by Australian Business

ROSARIO, ARGENTINA, October 02, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Autologica, a specialist in dealer management systems (DMS) for automotive dealers, announced today the release of a new version of its DMS that includes new features and greater integration with Toyota's aftersales interfaces.

Toyota's G-TOPAS system connects dealers to the brand's worldwide parts supply system. Toyota dealers who use Autologica DMS can interact with G-TOPAS through the parts price list, orders, packing list, and sales interfaces.

Autologica DMS has also added new features that help dealers receive Toyota certification under TSM Kodawari, a certification Toyota offers to guarantee aftersales service quality.

"We are very excited to offer dealers this new version of our DMS that will help them meet Toyota's quality standards, and which also allows information to flow between systems without duplicating data. This will minimize mistakes and make everybody more efficient," said Autologica CEO, Alfredo McClymont.

These features and interfaces are now available due to a highly successful pilot phase with a Toyota dealer, who achieved integration with the OEM and has been awarded the quality certification.

About AutologicaAutologica is a leader in providing innovative software to vehicle dealers. It offers two versions of its Dealer Management System: Autologica Sky DMS (on-demand, cloud-based), and Autologica DMS (on-premises). The company also provides other dealer-specific tools such as Appoint365 (workshop scheduling) and Dealer Web Manager (website administrator). Hundreds of dealers representing more than 40 brands in 15 countries use Autologica software. The company's website is <http://www.autologica.com>.

ContactAnalia MartinezMarketing & Communications Autologica DMS+54 341 409-3900 +1 787 966-7243analia.martinez@autologica.com <http://www.autologica.com>