

MONMOUTH COUNTY, NJ, October 04, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- We researched numerous cleaning agencies both large and small while compiling a list of cleaning services that we could recognize.

Elisa's Cleaning Service located in Aberdeen, NJ was not the largest cleaning service we researched and probably would be considered in the small to medium size category.

We asked Elisa one specific question regarding her philosophy when it comes to starting a relationship with her customers and the first question was "What's The Most Important?" and she responded with...

..."The most important elements in a good relationship is mutual respect and trust. After all my customers are allowing me into their homes or what I call their sanctuary. I strongly feel that this is sacred ground. The amount of trust that these homeowners invest into their house cleaning service is serious business and I never take that for granted."

Cleaning is cleaning but cleaning with your customers best interest at heart is where a relationship begins to form. That's why on my website I chose the headline "I'll Clean Your Place As If It Were My Own" and it's the truth.

My clients respect me because I respect them and we both wind up caring about each other as people.

Life is too short to work and not like your job. I look forward to seeing my customers and going the extra mile for them because it makes us both smile and feel great about the relationship we've created.

I offer deep cleaning service, seasonal cleaning , one-time cleaning and of course regular home cleaning for those customers that want to see me on a regular basis. (my favorite)
