

BEAVERCREEK, OH, October 10, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Dr. Charles Dean is a leading dentist in Beavercreek and is pleased to continue to utilize his practice's state-of-the-art, interactive website for improved knowledge for his patients. The educational website was created in order to enhance patient awareness of dental health care and provide information on the practice itself. It continues to be a focal point for Dr. Dean, as his patients can find the information they need at any time of the day.

The website for this Beavercreek dentist offers a wide array of valuable tools and information that patients can use to better inform themselves of various dental health care symptoms and treatments. Patients can visit the website via the Internet at any time during their day. And with an extensive educational library, patients have access to a wide range of dental health care topics with just the click of a mouse.

"With the availability of my practice's website, I hope that my patients will continue to utilize it for instant access to the dental health care information they need at any moment of the day. No longer do they have to wait until office hours to have their questions answered. If any questions do arise, the interactive website allows patients to look up their questions and find the answers in the educational library full of an array of topics," stated Dr. Charles Dean, a Beavercreek, OH dentist.

Patients do not always have time to take a moment out of their busy schedules to call the office for appointments. To improve patient convenience, Dr. Charles Dean, a cosmetic dentist in Beavercreek, has added the feature of online appointment requests. Simply by visiting the practice's innovative website, patients can request a date and time for their appointment and a scheduling representative will call them to confirm an appointment. No longer do patients need to interrupt their busy lives to make an appointment with Dr. Charles Dean at Beavercreek Dental Group.

Additionally, new patients visiting Beavercreek Dental Group now have the option to view and print new patient forms. Accessible via the practice's site, patients can view and print registration forms prior to their initial appointments with Dr. Dean, Beavercreek cosmetic dentist, including new patient information, financial policy, consent for disclosure and privacy practices. By allowing patients to print and fill out forms in advance of their first appointments, the initial visit between Dr. Charles Dean and the patient is enhanced, allowing for more time spent in treatment rather than in the waiting room filling out paper work.

When patients need oral health care, they turn to Dr. Charles Dean and his professional dental team at Beavercreek Dental Group for quality care that they can trust. With the Internet continuously changing the way patients manage their health, Dr. Dean is taking great strides to ensure his practice is in line with patient needs and wants with this educational, patient friendly website.
